YALE BOYS SCORE HIT

Give Pleasing Rendition of Old Italian Comedy.

AMATEURS IN NAME ONLY

Actors and "Actresses" Give Perfect
Production of "The Fan" and Overcome Usual Bets Noirs of the Nonprofessional Players—Female Roles
Acted with Much Ease and Skill.

Before a large audience, a majority of whom remembered the success scored by the Yale Dramatic Association in "London Assurance" last season, the representatives of the same university gave a delightful and pleasing rendition of Carlo Goldoni's old Italian comedy, "Il Ventaglio," "The Fan."

As in the better known piece played by the same dramatic club here last year, the audience had no fault to find with the actors, the "actresses," their work, the costumes, or the stage settings. Each was well-nigh perfect of its kind, and it is seldom that Washington audiences get the opportunity to see so delightful a little comedy so well acted by amateurs.

Amateurs in Name Only.

But these young men are amateurs in name only. They are professionally trained, and to the eye of the casual observer, their work is as finished as that of "real" actors. This was particularly noticeable yesterday in their entrance and exits, the usual betes noirs of the amateur. They were timed to the second, and not one dragged. Indeed, the entire production went off with a snap and vim that augured well for the young men should they ever care to take up the stage as a life work.

As is usual with a college production, the interest of the audience centered principally on the "female" parts, and it was with gasps—first of astonishment and then of pleasure—that they greeted the entrances of C. V. Hickox, Jr., and R. F. King, in the roles of Gertrude, a widow, and her niece, Candida, respectively. The make-up, costuming, carriage, and general appearance of these young men was truly remarkable, and their gowns, in the last act, far surpassed any ever seen in a college production in this city.

According to the programme, Mr. King, to whom was intrusted the leading role, is only a freshman. It is to be hoped for the sake of those who care for college theatricals that he will continue enacting the female parts, in the future productions, for by the time he reaches the senior class his work should be phenomenal.

The two other feminine roles, those of a young peasant girl and that of an old woman, were intrusted to A. M. Hartwell and J. E. Brown, each of whom did his work in a manner which compared favorably with that of the other two "women."

Honors to Woolley.

The honors among the "male" contingent were carried off by E. M. Woolley, president of the association, and W. C. Bullitt, Jr., as, respectively, the Count Rocco Marlin and the shoemaker, Crescino, who is in love with Giannina, the belle of the village. Others in the large cast whose work is deserving of particular praise were H. T. Cummings, in the character role of the village druggist; William DeF. Manice, as Evaristo, and R. A. Conroy, as the Baron del Cedro.

Mrs. Taft Attends.

Mrs. Taft, accompanied by the party of young people spending the week at the White House, attended the performance. Mrs. Taft also entertained a box party, having as her guests Miss Louise Munn and her fiancé, Reginald Boardman; Miss Dorothy Williams, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Leiter. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Leiter entertained a company of young people, including Miss Dorothy Gardner Williams,

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft
Arrive in the City.

DANCE AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Most Interesting Function of the Season Draws Society—German
Ambassador and Countess von Bernstorff Entertain at Luncheon.
Senator and Mrs. Burrows Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and their daughter, Miss Louise Taft, and Miss Amory, of Boston, arrived at the White House yesterday to join the house party being entertained there. The others are Miss Harriet Anderson, niece of Mrs. Taft; Mr. Ewen, of Chicago, and Mr. French and Mr. Philbin, of New York.

The most interesting function of this season, so far, was the dance given last evening at the White House by Mrs. Taft, for her daughter, Miss Taft, a bud of this season. The historic old mansion never looked more beautiful than with its simple decorations of bouquets of roses in the various parlors, forming a dignified setting for the 300 guests. An arrangement new to those familiar with White House functions was inaugurated last evening, the Marine Band being placed in a built-out band-room, from the east window of the East Room, over the new wing of that side of the house. The dancing was done in the East Room, where the floor is perfect, and the music of the Marine Band was quite in keeping with it.

Mrs. Taft wore a gown of pink satin chignon, with trimmings of lace and embroidery, and Miss Taft, who stood beside her mother, was in pale blue chiffon cloth over pale blue satin, trimmed with garlands of tiny pink rosebuds. The guests were asked for 10 o'clock, and general dancing was the order, with no cotillion. A buffet supper was served at midnight in the state dining-room.

Among the guests were the Vice President and Mrs. Sherman and their sons, Mr. Richard and Mr. Sherill Sherman, and their wives, and Mr. and Mrs. Brewster, all of Utah; Mr. Hugh Knox and his cousin, Miss Hester Singer, of Pittsburgh, son and niece of the Secretary of State; the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Meyer, the Misses Meyer, and their house guests, Miss Elise Ames, Miss Lillian Sears, both of Boston; Mr. Cutler, Mr. Jacques, and Mr. Harding, of Boston, and Mr. Cutting and Mr. Beall, of New York; the Attorney General and Mrs. Wickersham, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Akin; the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. MacVeagh, and their son, Mr. Eames MacVeagh, and their house guest, Mrs. Dexter Postmaster General Hitchcock, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ballinger; the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Nagel, Miss Hildegard Nagel, and Mrs. Nagel's nieces and house guests, the Misses Shirley, of Boston; the Secretary of Agriculture and his son, Mr. Jasper Wilson; Miss Ethel Roosevelt, the White House debutante of two years ago, and her brother, Mr. Kermit Roosevelt, who are guests of their brother-in-law and sister, Representative and Mrs. Longworth; Mrs. Charles Emory Smith and her niece, Miss Sullivan; Countess Alexandra von Bernstorff, daughter of the German Ambassador; Donna Beatrice Cusani Confalonieri, daughter of the Italian Ambassador; many of the bachelors of the diplomatic corps and the young married people of the same circle; Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. Leiter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Miss Dorothy Williams, Miss Yvonne Townsend, Dorothy Gardner Williams, Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Mein, Miss Hinkley, Miss Britton, Lieut. Aleshire, Miss Krogstad, Miss Whiting, Miss Harrison, Miss Mary McCarty, Miss Ruth Pilling, Miss Evelyn Chew, Miss Maria Calvo, Miss Olga Roosevelt, Miss Hammond, Miss May Hammond, Miss Mary Hoyle, niece of Mrs. John Hays Hammond; the Misses Greeley, Miss Frances Webster, the Misses Garrard, Miss Marguerite Barron, Miss Louise Hellen, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Westcott, Miss Alice Boutell, Miss Alice Wright, Lieut. and Mrs. S. Among the guests were the Chief Justice and Mrs. White, the members of the Supreme Court and their families, the members of the District judiciary and their families, and many of the old resident sets and other officials. Many of these guests went on from there to the White House for the dance.

The many friends of Mr. Henri Martin are delighted to learn that he has not been succeeded by any one as first secretary of the Swiss Legation.
